TO BE BURIED AT COLUMBUS

Mrs. S. J. McBride Was a Prominent Woman in That City.

Active in Work of Columbus Ladies' Improvement League.

Concerning the death of Mrs. S. J. McBride, mentioned in this paper yesterday, Wednesday's Columbus Republican says:

"Mrs. Samuel J. McBride died this morning about 8:30 o'clock at her home on Fifth street, after an illness of several days. Death is thought to have been caused by a complication of diseases.

"Mrs. McBride, whose maiden name was Ollie Florence Reeves, was the daughter of William and Hannah Reeves and was born in Rush county March 18th, 1861. She was married to Samuel J. McBride, October 16th, 1879, and they lived in Rush county for some time, coming here about sixteen years ago. Three children were born to this union, the first being Donald, born in Rush county. He died when young. Bernard McBride, who is the only surviving child, was born in Rush county, and is now twenty-one years of age. Ruth, the only daughter, was born here and died when but a child. Mrs. McBride was a sister of the late Jeff B. Reeves and three brothers survive her, they being Milton O. Reeves, Guernsey L. Reeves and Marshall T. Reeves, of this city.

"The death of Mrs. McBride is particularly sad and the news of it came this morning a great shock to her many friends. She had been ill but a comparatively short time and before that was so much alive and so interested in her home life and the work of her church that it is hard now to believe the news of her death. She was a member of the Tabernacle Christian church where she attended services regularly. Not only was she a regular attendant but she helped with the work of the church. Her very presence always meant much to those who had the good of the institution at heart and there was never any movement for good but what she could be counted on for her full share of the effort. In the Ladies Aid Society she will be missed as one of the faithful members of the organization and was influential in many of the good deeds which the organization has to its credit.

"The funeral of Mrs. McBride will be held from the Tabernacle Christian church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Elder William H. Book and Elder Z. T. Sweeney. Burial will be in the city cemetery."

TODAY, LONGEST OF THE YEAR

Sun Will Have Shone Fifteen Hours and One Minute Before it Sets.

Although almost forced to share the honors with yesterday, today, theoretically at least, will have been the longest of the year and—unless it rains—the sun will have shone for fifteen hours and one minute on Indiana. Old Sol appeared at 4:16 a. m. and will make his exit at 7:17 p. m. As a matter of fact he held the boards almost as long yesterday.

The "turning point" in the motion of the earth's axis was reached at an early hour this morning and the sun will now swing toward the equator to be lost in autumn's gold and winter's frosts. Owing to the time of the "turn" the sun was above the horizon almost as long yesterday as today, but accurate astronomers say there was a difference of a few seconds and the sun always has faithfully observed the scientific program.

POLICE HAVE A MUSEUM

Interesting Collection of Plunder—Policeman Price's Good Work

The police force of the city has established a veritable arsenal or curio shop at the office of Deputy Prosecutor Kiplinger, which has been made police headquarters.

The "plunder" consists of various kind of "plunder" and "spoils" captured by Policemen Price and Pea in their raids and arrests.

Policeman Price has been on the force since May 5th. Since that time he has made fifty-three arrests and has captured all kinds of paraphernalia that he has stored away at "headquarters."

The "plunder" obtained includes five or six revolvers, all sizes, calibre and patterns, four or five pair of babbitt metal, brass and cast iron "knucks," six or eight knives, all sizes and shapes, two decks of cards, about a half bushel of poker chips, a lot of dice and other articles too numerous to mention.

If the policemen continue to add to their collection, it will soon be necessary for Deputy Prosecutor Kiplinger to move out or hold an auction sale.

TO PASS OR NOT TO PASS

An Effort is Being Made to Settle Question of Railway Passes

Railway Contend That Commission Has no Right to Prohibit the Issuance of Passes

Indianapolis, June 21.—The case submitted by the state to the railway companies to determine whether the Indiana railway commission has the authority to prohibit the use and issuance of passes, and also whether the railway commission act is constitutional because it does not include supervision of interurban lines, was argued before Judge James M. Leathers of the superior court yesterday afternoon.

Deputy Attorney General Henry M. Dowling appeared for the state. H. R. Kurrie of Rensselaer represented the Monon, which was named as defendant. John B. Cockrum, general counsel for the Lake Erie & Western, appeared for a number of roads that were interested. The questions considered were: First, does the issuance of passes present unjust discrimination within the prohibition contained in the commission law; second, does the fact that interurban railways are exempt from the provisions of the law render it unconstitutional?

The section of the law which Mr. Dowling said prohibited the issuance of passes, follows: "If any railroad, subject hereto, shall charge, demand, collect or receive from any person a greater or less compensation for any service rendered by it than it charges to any other person for doing a like service in the transportation of a like kind of traffic under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, such railroad shall be deemed guilty of discrimination, which is hereby prohibited."

Mr. Dowling did not argue this feature of the case at length. He declared that the granting of a pass was an unjust discrimination against persons who do not have them, as the passholder gets the same service as the person who pays his fare. The most of his argument was directed toward proving that the railway commission act was not class legislation because it affected the railroads and exempted the interurban railways. He maintained that the latter are not common carriers like railroads, and that therefore the railway commission act was not class legislation because they are exempted. Mr. Kurrie did not spend any time trying to show that interurbans should have been included. His argument was relative to the right to issue passes. He said that conditions under which a passholder travels are dissimilar to those of the persons who pay fare, as the passholder agrees not to hold the company responsible for damage, while the company is responsible to the other class of passengers for loss or damage.

There is no discrimination, he said, because the conditions are not the same. He also insisted that the railroad company gave the pass in the capacity of a private carrier and that the passholder, in accepting it, separated himself from the general public and became the guest of the road. Judge Leathers took the case under advisement.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Supreme Court Settles a Vital Point in Relation to Drainage.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—The state supreme court has handed down a decision in the case of Henry L. Taylor vs. John N. Strayer, of great importance to the northern part of the state, where the drainage problem is vital.

The last legislature enacted a law repealing all existing drainage laws except as they were continued in force to complete ditches that had been ordered established.

The decision will defeat many pending proceedings for drainage in northern Indiana.

The court holds that one legislature cannot determine the policy of succeeding legislatures nor forestall action which may be deemed expedient to protect public health or to promote public welfare, but it is clearly within the power of the legislature to change the laws and prohibit the drainage of lakes, even though such change of policy and prohibitory legislation might result in individual inconvenience, hardship and loss.

The supreme court is considering an appeal of James Gillespie from the sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of his sister at Rising Sun three years ago. Ex-Congressman Marlon Griffith of Vevay, Addison C. Harris of this city, and J. B. Coles of Rising Sun appeared for Gillespie. The state was represented by William Geake, deputy attorney general, and Cassius McMullen of Aurora. The principal point on which Gillespie's attorneys relied was made by Mr. Harris, who asserted that in setting aside the jury after submission of the case for the second trial, because one member was a distant relative of Mrs. Belle Seward, who was jointly indicted with Gillespie for the crime, had placed the defendant in jeopardy the second time, which was contrary to the state constitution. He held that the discharge of the jury merely because the state preemptorily challenged one member, terminated the state's right to try Gillespie before any jury. Mr. Geake replied that inasmuch as the defendant's attorney had made no objection, so far as the record shows, to setting aside the jury, that he is not entitled to release now on the ground that an error was made. He also argued that a trial judge has a right to discharge a jury when it is apparent that reasons exist to prevent a fair and impartial hearing. This is supposed to be Gillespie's last stand for release from prison, and his attorneys are making a hard fight.

A rumor has been going the rounds of the capital for several days that State Fish and Game Commissioner Sweeney of Columbus had issued an order to put the lid on and prohibit Sunday fishing. The old-timers, who like to steal away with a rod and line on the Sabbath without saying a word to their pastor or constituents, have been greatly worried lest Mr. Sweeney had instructed his deputies to keep an eagle eye on all lakes and streams. He is trying to enforce the laws rigidly, and they thought that he had it in his power to nab them for fishing on Sunday, but his chief deputy, E. E. Earle, said today that Mr. Sweeney is powerless to interfere. There is nothing in any of the fish and game laws forbidding Sunday sport, but there is an old law making it a desecration of the Sabbath to fish on the first day of the week. Near New Philadelphia some of the farmers recently were greatly annoyed by drunken Sunday fishermen, and they had them arrested for violating the day. Under the old law a conviction was possible. Since then Mr. Earle said that many constables have arrested people who fish on Sunday, but Mr. Sweeney has not been identified with any of the prosecutions.

Governor Folk of Missouri spent a few hours in Indianapolis last night enroute home. An informal dinner was given in his honor by Governor Hanly at the Claypool hotel. Governor Folk spoke at Indiana university yesterday at the commencement exercises.

STATEHOOD SETTLED

What the People of Oklahoma Owe to the Tireless Energy of Senator Beveridge.

A SOURCE OF GRATIFICATION

Adoption by the Senate of the Conference Report on the Statehood Bill
A Great and Historic Victory for the Senior Senator From Indiana.

[Washington Correspondence.]

So far as the United States senate is concerned, the hard-fought, long-contested controversy concerning the statehood of Oklahoma and Indian Territories and New Mexico and Arizona, has been settled by the adoption of the conference report on the statehood bill.

This result, which is the equivalent of the passage of the statehood bill, was a great victory for Senator Beveridge of Indiana, whose name, during all the years of consideration of the subject matter of statehood for the four territories has been so conspicuously and honorably connected as its leader, and whose untiring efforts during all this time, even when there was hardly a forlorn hope for the accomplishment of statehood, never ceased.

By the terms of the conference report, Oklahoma and Indian Territory are to be admitted to the Union as one state under the name of Oklahoma. When the bill passed the house some months ago, it contained the provision for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as one state under certain terms and eventualities, but the senate rejected all provisions made for New Mexico and Arizona Territories, and the part of the bill accepted by the conference report remains in substantially the same shape as when the bill originally passed the house some months ago.

A compromise between the senate and the house concerning Arizona and New Mexico was devised by the conference committee after many spirited sessions and keen controversies. By this compromise, it was provided that at the fall elections of 1906 the voters of these two territories shall decide, first, whether they want to come into the Union as one state under the name of Arizona, and secondly, the voters of each territory should decide by majority vote that the people of each territory, respectively, so desired. Should a majority of the votes cast in either territory be in the negative upon these propositions, then all further proceedings looking to the admission of New Mexico and Arizona to statehood, under the name of Arizona, will be suspended. In passing upon this proposition, the voters at the same time will have the opportunity to select delegates to the constitutional convention, should it be determined that the two territories desire admission to statehood as the state of Arizona. Regardless, however, of the result of the voting upon this proposition in New Mexico and Arizona, it should have no effect whatever upon the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory to statehood under the provisions of the bill, as amended by the conference report.

It must be a source of great gratification to Senator Beveridge that the senate has finally accepted the conference report, containing substantially all the features originally conceived by him when the statehood question, more than four years ago, first arose in the senate. It may be said with absolute truth that the senator is the father, politically, of the new state of Oklahoma. He first conceived the idea of a state composed of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and from the time that his proposition found tangible form as a bill for the consideration of the senate, up to the present hour, a contest of statesmen, involving the keenest minds and most scrutinizing search into the histories of these territories for light upon the proposition pro and con has been waged. This political battle in the senate, continuing through the past four years, has been historic and unprecedented, and culminates in a signal victory for the senator.

When the Beveridge bill was originally introduced, it was vigorously and acrimoniously opposed by the people of all the territories themselves, but the senator remained firm, confident in his belief that deliberation, study and information would in time educate the people of those territories to his view.

Too much credit and praise cannot be given to Senator Beveridge for his untiring efforts and unfaltering faith in the ultimate achievement of statehood for Oklahoma, as originally conceived by him and embodied in his original bill, and no man stands higher in the measure of public confidence, integrity, singleness of purpose and disinterested motive and tireless energy in achieving their best interests than does Senator Beveridge among the people of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and over the nation at large, in all parts of which this great contest for a new state and a new star in the flag has been so constantly watched. No man has ever been recognized as a more tireless leader, able debater or more conscientious investigator of a matter committed to his charge than Senator Beveridge, to whose personal attention and steady faith the result must primarily be accredited.

PURE FOOD BILL

WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT
Views of the Executive Regarding the Russian Massacres.

New York, June 21.—A telegram from President Roosevelt relative to the recent massacre of Jews in Russia was read last night at a mass-meeting of Jews in this city. In it the president said: "I shall go over the matter with Secretary Root. You know how deeply we sympathize with your feelings and how shocked and horrified we are at what has occurred in Russia. You know also how well-nigh impossible it is to accomplish anything but harm by interference."

The mass-meeting was held at the Jewish synagogue in Norfolk street to lament the death of the Jews in the recent massacre at Bialystok. The gathering was under the auspices of the United Hebrew community. The synagogue, which holds about 3,000 persons, was crowded to the doors, while outside there was a large crowd who could not get into the building.

When the lamentations for the dead were chanted there were sobs from every quarter of the synagogue and a number of women became hysterical from grief. Several rabbis made speeches in Yiddish, after which Rabbi Joseph Silverman of Temple Emanuel spoke at length in English. After reading the president's telegram he said it was the word of the chief magistrate as to diplomatic interference and it must prevail. He added that congress could, however, amend the immigration bill now pending before it so as not to make it apply to immigrants fleeing from Russia to this country as a refuge from massacres. He believed he said that the whole country would stand by congress in this matter.

The senate held its first night session, which was devoted to the consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. Senator Hale had reported the sundry civil appropriation bill. It carries $102,347,279, a net increase of $7,760,209 over the amount carried by the bill as it passed the house. The sundry civil bill a year ago carried $67,163,609. An amendment was adopted restoring to the bill an appropriation of $25,000 to pay the traveling expenses of the president, which item went out of the bill in the house on a point of order. The senate committee struck out the house provision for a lock canal across the Isthmus of Panama. A vote on this question will be had in the senate to-day.
